Alex's excellent adventure

"Local girl Alex Veldums (daughter of Harry & Kerry) is in the final stages of her four year Bachelor of Education degree, which Alex has been studying at the University of Tasmania, Launceston campus.

Alex has finished all coursework, assignments etc. and is expecting to formally graduate in December this year but the final step in the completion of her degree is a six-week practicum at a nominated school. Alex and a fellow fourth year student Cara Turner, have been extremely lucky to secure their practicum at the Purnululu Aboriginal Independent Community School in the Kimberley region of WA.

The school is located in the Purnululu National Park which is home to the incredible Bungle Bungle Ranges. Purnululu is approximately

70km west of the WA/NT border and 150km south of Kununurra. Getting there involved flights from Launceston to Melbourne, Melbourne to Adelaide and then Adelaide to Broome. After an overnight stop in Broome (a very comfortable winter day with a maximum of 29 degrees) there was a five and a half hour drive east to Yilli (to drop off another student teacher). The Principal of the Purnululu School then collected Alex and Cara from Yilli in the School bus and on the way to Purnululu (another 2.5 hours) had a collision with a huge kangaroo causing considerable damage to the bus.

Alex and Cara arrived at Purnululu in darkness; a full two days travel after leaving Launceston at 6.45am.

Alex and Cara were made to feel immediately welcome with the local children fascinated by their fragrant smell and the smoothness and colour of their skin and constant displays of genuine affection by way of hugs. A person of great significance in the community recently died so both Alex and Cara will be expected to attend what promises to be a huge funeral followed by a period which Alex has described as "sorry time"; the nature of which is yet to be discovered.

Accommodation is at a very acceptable standard though it may take a little time to adjust to the long drop toilet and outside shower plus the huge local population of dogs and the "out of control" flies.

In her first communication to Harry and Kerry, Alex has stated that she loves the whole experience and is so glad to have been afforded this great opportunity."

A LITTLE BIT OF HERITAGE: Jim Haas "Crossing the Derwent"

One of Hobart's, and indeed, Tasmanian's greatest assets is the Derwent River. It provides excellent port facilities, wonderful recreational venues and adds a picturesque aspect to the city of Hobart. But the river has not been without its problems for the Government of the day in Tasmania, even as far back as September 1803 when Lieutenant John Bowen first settled on the eastern shore at Risdon Cove. Lieutenant David Collins came in February the following year and immediately argued that the eastern shore was unsuitable for a settlement and chose Sullivans Cove on the western side to settle at what we now know as Hobart. Thus the problem of crossing the River from one settlement to the other began.

By the time Lieutenant-Governor George Arthur took over Van Diemens Land in May 1824, the eastern shore and southern midland areas were being developed into prime farmland by the settlers, and the movement of goods, in particular livestock, across the Derwent River was an increasing problem. In 1829 Arthur moved a gang of 200 convicts upstream to a place he name Bridgewater. This was where the River's main channel was hard against the eastern bank and the western side was suitable to build a causeway through the shallows to the edge of the channel. The convicts, most of whom were secondary offenders working in chain gangs, and toiled long and hard for several years. Their methods were primitive, using nothing more than wheelbarrows, picks, shovels and pure muscle power to move an estimated two million tonnes of rocks, clay and dirt to construct a 1.3 kilometre causeway.

On completion of the causeway, a flat punt was used to ferry goods, people and livestock across what was now the narrowest part of the lower Derwent River. But with the increasing traffic moving up and down the Island, this soon proved inadequate and the first bridge across the Derwent, which was an extension of the causeway and designed by convict architect James Blackburn, was built and opened in 1849. This was a swing bridge, which allowed it to pivot out of the way to allow ships to pass through. A rail line was also constructed on the side of the bridge in 1876 when the railway from Hobart to Launceston was built.

The original Bridgewater Bridge lasted until the early 1900s when it was replaced by another swinging bridge and in 1946 the current steel and concrete bridge, with a lifting section to allow ships through, was opened.

Apart from water vessels, the bridge at Bridgewater provided the only means of crossing the Derwent for over ninety years. But with the development of housing on the Eastern Shore, particularly in the Bellerive-Rosny area, the need for a vehicle crossing closer to the centre of Hobart became imperative. In the late 1930s work began on building a series of concrete, floating pontoons at Geilston Bay, each of which was floated a couple of kilometres down river and bolted in place to form the Hobart Bridge. The bridge was 961 metres long, 12.3 metre wide and had a lifting span on the western side to allow ships up to 44 metres in height to sail through. After the Official Opening on the 22nd December 1943 a toll was placed on the bridge, but lifted six years later. The Bridge's main problem was in bad weather, when waves would break over the pontoons causing danger to motorists and damage to the pontoons. Also long delays occurred when ships were passing through under the lift.

With the opening of the Hobart Bridge however, the development of the Eastern Shore increased at a rapid pace and by the end of the 1950s it became apparent that the humble, but famous, floating bridge could no longer cope with the ever increasing traffic. This brought about a Government decision in 1960 to build a massive structure which would go on to bear the name of the first European explorer to Van Diemens Land and cope with the traffic well into the Twenty-first Century.

The current Tasman Bridge was opening for traffic on the 18th August 1964, with the Official Opening held on March 18th 1965. It now stands as a spectacular showpiece in the City of Hobart and a vital link to the fast growing Eastern Suburbs. Apart from the Lake Illawarra disaster on the 5th January 1975, when the bulk ore carrier took out two pylons and three sections of concrete decking, and resulted in the loss of lives, the bridge has served the city well. Except perhaps, in peak hours when, even with the help of the Bowen Bridge, opened a few kilometres further north in February 1984, traffic in and out of Hobart at this time of day can be chaotic.

But despite the chaos of today it would not compare with Robert Vincent Legge's crossing of the Derwent River back in 1827. He, with the help of his crew of assigned convicts, would have loaded his small mob of sheep and supplies into long boats to reach the northern shore in order to start his long trek through the Midlands and into the Fingal Valley to settle on his land grant at "Cullenswood". One can only wonder how many days his journey would have taken, or the difficulties he would have encountered.

School name change

There seem to be some debate surrounding the proposed change. I really don't have an opinion one way or another (I can hear some of you mumbling "makes a change"). Maybe a public debate would be useful?

I do however, have a strong opinion (here she goes) about one item of school clothing in the current range. The Rugby jumper. What were they thinking?!? I find it ludicrous to have a large white panel smack-dab in the centre!

Can there be a rational explanation for this? Did no-one stop to think what a disaster this would be?? All those poor mums toiling over the dreaded white stripe. Soaking, scrubbing, & crying, then drying the damn thing!

Did the "nut" who designed it forget who would be wearing them?? Grubby little kids aged 4 and up, that's who! This insanity has to stop! Let's start a movement:

"BAN THE STRIPE"

And when the new uniform arrives. I reckon we should take every single one of those horrid things (the jumpers, not the kids) and have a huge bonfire until there is no trace left behind, so this never happens again!!!

What do you think?

Kim Chappell.

Well done to Melanie and the J.A.M. team for providing a great afternoon of entertainment on Saturday 14th August. Great to see so many people enjoying themselves. SQUIRT the clown was kept busy making sure every child received an amazing balloon creation and was also really funny. His illusion show was fantastic (and he'd obviously been working out! ha. ha.)

Throw in a jumping castle, sausages, tea, coffee, cordial, cakes, sandwiches, and you have an event that was terrific. Thank you.

Kelly, Chloe & Katy.

Oh no - Liz has done it again! Not only am I addicted to her delicious REAL hot chocolate, now I've discovered her thicker than thick THICKSHAKES. 4 scoops of icecream that makes the straw stand up all by itself. SENSATIONAL.

And Liz now stocks Cascade drinks-so guess what! She can now make SPIDERS!

I love that there's always something new and delicious to treat the tastebuds. It's great to see a local small business growing from strength to strength.

I know whenever I'm out and about in Tassie and I see MT ELEPHANT FUDGE sold somewhere, I feel proud of Liz and her achievement, and feel lucky to live in the town where it's made, where you can drop in for a friendly chat and a delicious treat. Keep 'em coming Liz. Kelly, Strawberry Jelly.

Once again, Samaritans Purse shoe boxes are available to send to children in need at refugee camps and poorer countries. Cost of shipping this year is $9.

There was no sponsorship.

Some soft toys, balls and face washers have been donated.

These will be in your box to assist with expenses.

St Marys School Association St Marys District High School Association Inc. news ABN.404863 13 Gray Road, St Marys, Tasmania, 7215.

On behalf of the School Association committee, I would like to thank all entries to our recent competition on the proposed new identity for the school. This competition was an attempt to promote awareness of proposed federation with Fingal School, stimulate debate and ideas around the concept of an identity change, and to inform all members of the community of the potential changes to the school's corporate identity.

There were a broad range of ideas submitted, too many for us to reply to in person. All submissions, including those advocating a no change position will receive due consideration.

We are aware that many people feel a strong sense of pride and history in the school, and that is a great strength in our community. We would hope that any changes made will reflect both current sentiments and future needs of students.

It is our primary aim as a committee to support the educational needs of all children attending our school, and we strongly feel that the federation with Fingal has many advantages for all. Our discussions as to the final form of that federation are ongoing and we intend to keep the community fully informed as to the progress on the discussions.

Long Tan Address by Joshua McDiarmid

The battle of Long Tan was the shining point for the Vietnam War. It showed that Australian troops never give up, even if the odds are stacked against them.

I almost had a connection to the Vietnam War through my father.

Because of conscription, he was selected to be sent to Vietnam. He even received the paper work, but by some unforeseen stroke of luck he didn't go. He had recently married and had a child, so he was given a deferment.

Many other men were not as lucky as my father. They were sent to Vietnam to fight in the war. Although many disliked the idea of going overseas, away from family and friends, and fighting in a war that many felt that Australia should not have been involved in, once in Vietnam they still fought proving their loyalty to Australia.

That was further proven in the battle of Long Tan on the 18th of August 1966. In the rubber plantation, 108 Australian soldiers defeated a foe much larger than them, estimated to be around 2,500.

All thoughts of home were put aside. The one thought going through the minds of the troops was to stop the enemy. Not once did they say "This is too hard". They just kept on fighting. After a long and grueling battle that lasted more than two hours the enemy soldiers retreated, leaving behind an estimated 245 dead. 18 Australian troops were killed and 24 injured. The youngest Australian killed was 19, the oldest only 22.

I would like to thank the Australian troops involved in that battle along with the many other troops that fought in the Vietnam War. Their courage is endless.

Long Tan Address by Zachary Broadhurst

Good afternoon everybody, I'm Zachary Broadhurst and I'm from St Marys District High School, and I'm here today to share a speech about the Vietnam war and how it seems to me.

To me the Vietnam War is ancient history and it's more that three times my lifetime ago, but in a room full of people who were actually there it makes me realise how little I know. My uncle was the right age for conscription to Vietnam and now I think about it, my grandpa was in World War 2, and my great grandpa fought in World War 1 nearly a hundred years ago, I suppose that is ancient history.

During Australia's involvement in the Vietnam War which went from 1962 till 1975, 501 Australian service people were killed. Just the other day I heard another Australian soldier was killed in Afghanistan, I just can't grasp that times 501 and I don't think I want to and hope I never have to.

I think you are all incredibly brave. I would be very scared if I was put in your shoes for just one day of that war, or any war, but I know that sometimes people have to go to war. I never want it to happen to me, but if it does, I hope I would be brave as you must have been, like my grandpa and great grandpa.

I suppose to be brave is to stand up for what's right no matter how dangerous or terrifying it may be.

I respect all of you for putting your lives on the line to do what was right and what your country asked of you. More than respect, I give you my thanks.

Veterans

Long Tan

The St Marys Memorial Association would like to give a sincere thank you to all the attending Vietnam Veterans. Joshua McDiarmid and Zachary Broadhurst for their addresses from the heart. Sean Harris whose understanding and grasp of modern technology saved us a lot of frustration on the day. Rita and Ian Summers. The Coach House whose sandwiches were a culinary delight. The St Marys District High School. The St Marys Hotel for the venue. The hardworking St Marys Memorial Association Committee and the Targett family for letting us play the last post by the late Selby Targett. The Break O'Day Woodcraft Guild for the tables and chairs. Judy and the volunteers at the Valley Voice who made sure our ad was placed. Last but not least the Community of St Marys.

Lest we forget

Tribute to All Vietnam Veterans. David Watkins

The Vietnam war was over 8 years before I joined the defence force, but from the footage I have seen, by serving with veterans and knowledge I have gained, I hope I can adequately represent today those men and women who served in the Vietnam war.

As most of us are aware the Vietnam War was a very different conflict in many aspects from the Second World War; with the exception that Australians fought and some 521 unfortunately died doing what their country asked of them. The enemy was not as clearly identified.

Ground that was intensely fought over, and where lives had been lost was then, going against normal tactics, abandoned. The enemy was not forced to fight on their own soil, and their ability to make war was not as strongly attacked.

Soldiers found themselves enduring up to four times as much time in contact with the enemy, that is being shot at, than his father fighting in WW2 experienced. This also occurred over a shorter period of time.

Many Vietnam veterans, on returning to Australia, were not given the reception and or respect that they deserved after serving their country.

The soldiers of the Vietnam War era were trained/conditioned to kill, not just fire their weapons, as their predecessors had been. It was found that in WW2 only 25 to 50 percent of the men in a front line unit were actually taking deliberate aim and firing to kill the enemy; all were willing to die for their country, but some could not bring themselves to kill another person. Through changes in military training methods, sometimes known as killology in the services, this had reportedly changed so that 100% of our soldiers were firing to kill the enemy in Vietnam. This, combined with other factors resulted in an increase in the psychological problems that the veterans experienced.

During the Vietnam War, a glimpse of the true horror of war came into our living rooms every night via the television. Watching those broadcasts, I soon came to realise that real warfare is nothing like that portrayed in the movies.

The footage of the police chief shooting a person in the head, and the Vietnamese girl running burned and naked down the road after a napalm attack on her village, will always be imprinted in my mind. For me, these and flights of helicopters have become the memorable images of the Vietnam War. What may have been lost to many is the background and outcome of those involved in those images I just mentioned.

The police chief was filmed summarily executing a North Vietnamese special forces soldier who was captured not wearing a uniform during North Vietnam's TET offensive, a sentence and action that is permissible for that offence under the rules of war. The man just happened to be from a unit that had murdered the police chief's wife the day before. The girl survived and moved to America. She was later to design the United States Vietnam War Memorial.

Like many things from that war, not all was as it seemed.

I have heard it said by Veterans that if you were not there, I can not explain it to you, and if you were there, you do not need to ask.

To the lay person this statement may seem strange but I believe it makes perfect sense. After being placed in life threatening situations, trying to explain the emotions and feelings I had at that point in time to anyone, I found extremely difficult. In returning to the scene later you realise that others can have no comprehension or understanding of what actually took place to the people involved in that incident, for that place is now totally different from how you experienced it.

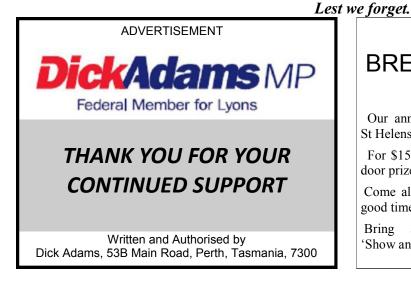

I am sure my experiences pale into insignificance from those the Veterans have faced, and for many of them, still do.

After seeing uncensored images of the Vietnam War, and speaking to a veteran of his experience; after he had a few drinks, for that was the only way he could recount a part of his story, even to another colleague, I can understand why it is difficult for veterans to openly recount their experiences.

Death, let alone killing, in not openly discussed in our society, and I find myself reluctant to pass on the real horror and waste that is war, to anyone, and I have not felt, smelled and tasted it like our veterans have.

I will conclude with a slight variation of the wording I used to open the ANZAC DAY service.

"We are not here today to glorify war but to remember and show respect for those who have faced the horrors of war on behalf of us and their country".

BREAK O'DAY STITCHERS FRIENDSHIP DAY

Our annual Friendship Day is on the 15th October at St Helens Neighbourhood House in the Bungalow.

For $15 you will receive morning tea and lunch, lucky door prize, trade table and much more.

Come along and meet old and new friends and have a good time making one or two small projects to take home.

Bring along your latest stitching project for 'Show and Tell'.

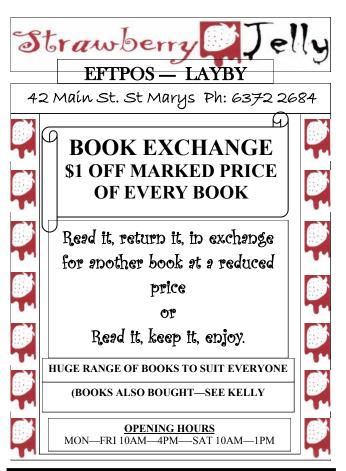

Polling Day

St Marys was a hive of activity for most of the day last Saturday, as voters flocked to the polling booth to cast their votes.

Many took advantage of the day and voted early, while others came out to do a little shopping and vote later in the day.

The weather was not pleasant, as a cold and biting wind blew off Ben Lomond, for most of the day.

As the final result is not known as we go to press, congratulations to those who have made it and commiserations to those who have not.

Coast & Country Quilting Exhibition

The official launch of the Coast & Country Exhibition took place on an overcast Saturday afternoon and was very well attended by approximately 30 community members.

The exhibition is a part of the Tasmanian Regional Arts -Visual Arts Touring Program and was hosted by Gone Rustic under the auspices of the Break O'Day Regional Arts. Thirty Eight beautiful contemporary quilts, all made by the NSW Quilting Guild, are on display at Gone Rustic until August 31st. The range of quilts is quite magnificent and there was one to appeal to everyone's taste who attended the launch. The colours, designs and stitching were truly excellent and inspirational.

Sandwiches and soup were served as a light lunch and door prizes were won by three lucky attendees. If you were unable to make the launch, do try to get to Gone Rustic before 31st August to view this delightful exhibition.

APOLOGY

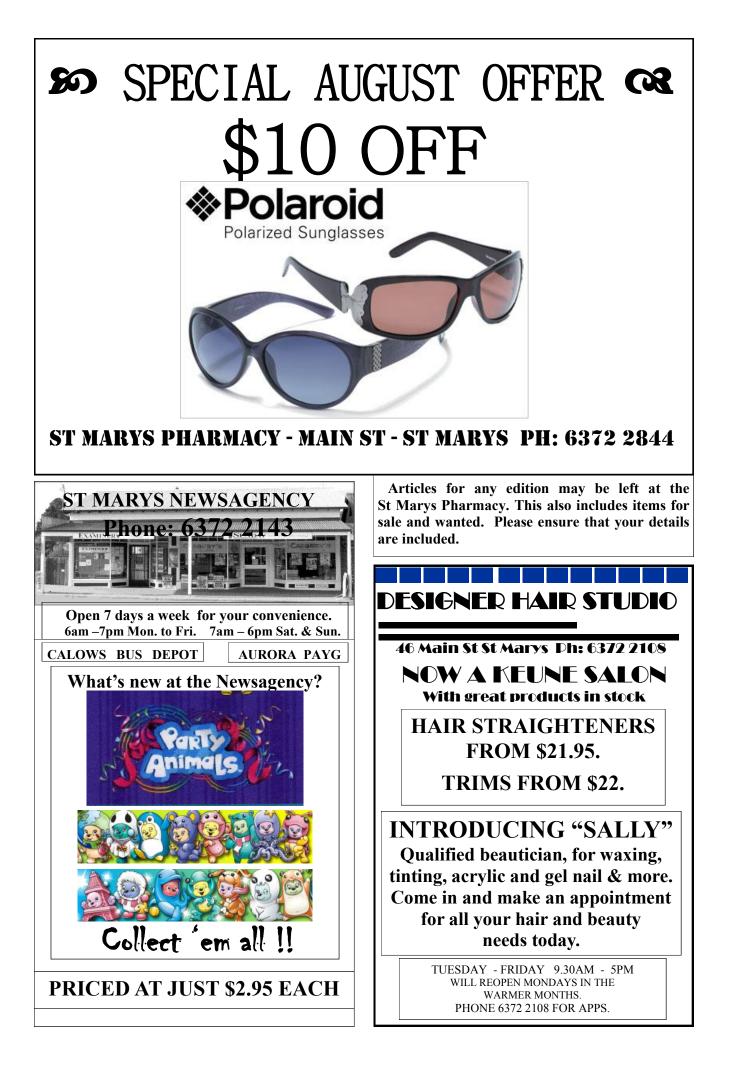

The St Patricks Head & Esk Valley Historical Society would like to apologise for the cancellation of the Old Dalmayne Mine Site Walk which was advertised for Sunday the 15th August.

Owing to some 200 millimetres of rain falling at Gray in the week leading up to the walk, it was decided many of the creek crossings would be unsafe as well as other areas of the track would be extremely boggy and unstable.

Due to the amount of interest shown in this walk, however, we will endeavour to reschedule it in the coming weeks.

Please keep eye on the Valley Voice and our website for details, or phone: Barry 6372 5752, Darlene 6372 2416, or Jim 6372 2127.

Has your dog got a microchip yet?

From 1 July 2011 new provisions under the Tasmanian Dog Control Act 2000 mean microchips will be mandatory for all dogs.

The small microchips are simply inserted under a dogs coat and make positive identification of dogs quick and easy, nationwide.

To help you get a chip for your dog cheaply and easily, the Break O'Day and Northern Midlands Councils have organised a microchipping day as per the details below:

When:	2 October 2010
Time:	10:30am – 2:00pm
Where:	Fingal Football Club Rooms
Cost:	$20.00 per animal
Dogs must be on a	LEAD. CATS ARE WELCOME TOO, BUT MUST BE IN A CRATE.
Enquiries to: Break O'Day Council by phoning Jacci on 63 767 900 or email: admin@bodc.tas.gov.au;
Northern Midlands Council by phoning Sandra on 63 977303 or email: sandras@nmc.tas.gov.au;
or Dorset Council by phoning Wayne on 63 256 505 or email: WChurchill@dorset.tas.gov.au

Iron House Brewery

Ironhouse Brewery is now located within the new building at White Sands Estate and is set behind windows for your viewing pleasure! We offer four handcrafted brews that are made to traditional recipes from quality ingredients and Tasmanian water, sourced from our own spring. Our brews are refreshingly unpasteurised and have no preservatives or additives. Join us at the Brewhaus Café and Bar for tastings or enjoy a beer on our deck. Take away sales are available at the Providore.

White Sands Estate, Ironhouse Point is quickly becoming a food and wine destination. The area is synonymous with farming, fishing and its pristine environment. It is these attributes that inspire us to provide to our guests and visitors alike true Tasmanian produce. From our specially designed Providore at white sands we offer tastings and sales of our Ironhouse beers and in the near future our own wines. We also sell our own produce grown and made onsite that we use in our exceptional restaurants: Le Blanc fine dining and the BrewHaus bar and café.

In addition to our own products and we also carry lines from some of Tasmania's top producers including:

-Beauty lines from Beauty and the Bees, including everything from Beer Shampoo to body care gift packs.

-Confectionary items including Sweet As, Tasmanians premium Rock Candy makers; Anvers, producers of the finest truffles and Mt Elephant Fudge, suppliers of a variety of decadent fudge.

-Meats: Our very own Iron House Angus Beef; famous smoked goods and sausages from Sir Loin Brier; and Mt Gnomon Pork Belly and Hams.

-Seafood: Fresh Oysters from Freycinet Marine Farm and smoked Salmon from Petuna Seafood's.

With one of Tasmania's best dairy's on our door step, Pyengana Dairy, we have a selection of their premium cheeses and of course their Real Milk.

To match our splendid beer and fine wine selection we carry an assortment of cheeses from Ashgrove cheese and when paired with one of our own dips, Island Grove Olives and Leavenbank Sourdough, you have the makings for an amazing experience.

We have sourced the freshest seasonal fruit and vegetables from our market garden supplier and are also using our local bakery to ensure that we have fresh baked breads daily. You can also collect your daily newspaper here (if you require special papers other than our local paper, The Examiner, please let our sales staff know the day before and we will order it in for you.

We have a variety of important grocery items that you may have forgotten and also Iron House Natural spring water plus a selection of soft drinks.

Not only do we want to look after all your food and beverage items, we also want to look after that special person in your life, so explore our range of art, craft and homewares, you might just find the perfect gift you have been looking for.

Break O'Day Regional

Invitation to a Community Meeting (hosted by) St Marys Rivulet Community Park/Arts Space Interest Group Monday 13th September 2010 5.30 - 6.30pm Mount Elephant Fudge HQ, 7 Storey Street St Marys

You may have noticed petitions around town in recent months that relate to the block of land on the corner of Groom and Storey Streets, St Marys and its future use. A number of community members have supported the idea of using this site as a community owned park and/or a sculpture and arts space. This proposal builds upon the ideas of former Break O'Day councillor David Clement and is supported by his family.

Community support has been shown by a large number of people signing both the first petition and the second petition that is still in circulation. Strong support for the newly formed St Marys Rivulet Community Park/Arts Space Interest Group was also shown at the recent Tree Planting Activity held at the site. Continued community support and commitment is needed to help us determine the people's vision for the site, the hope is that a motion can be put to Council outlining this vision and requesting that the site be established in perpetuity as a community park/arts space.

This is YOUR chance to attend a community meeting and put forward YOUR ideas about this green space and how it may best be utilised as a community park/arts space. We would particularly like to see those people attend who took the time to sign the petitions as we think they may be likely to have some great ideas to throw into the ring. Invitations have also been extended to local groups who might have an interest in such a venture.

Following the meeting, it is envisaged that a motion will be drawn up for presentation to Council. This motion will represent the community views expressed at the meeting. A formal committee will be formed to take forward the plans for the site subsequent to the desired Council approval being granted.

Some of the ideas that have been canvassed so far and could be incorporated into the site design include:

- a sculpture park, potentially showcasing local and visiting artists;
- a planted park/picnic area for community and visitor use, linking in with the trees which have been
 - planted at the east and west entrances to the town;
- a location for creative arts programs and small scale community events;
- a green maze;
- specialised plantings, such as scented gardens for the visually impaired etc; a walking path connecting the camping ground with the town.

Please come along, bring your enthusiasm, ideas and support and let's MAKE this a great space for locals and visitors alike!!

Please contact Janet Drummond on 6372 2851 to lodge your interest or ask any questions that you might have in regard to this project.

Looking forward to seeing you there!

OUT OF THE WOODWORK Wendy Brennan, Secretary. 0408 656 014

A reminder to all that our Annual General Meeting will be held on the 4th September 2010 at 2pm. The venue will be our Club House at the Old Railway Goods Shed Esk Highway St Marys. All positions will be declared vacant.

As there are many newcomers to our town I would like to take this opportunity to reiterate our club's guidelines.

The outlay to join the Guild is $16.00 per year which covers insurance expenditure, wear and tear on the machinery and miscellaneous bits and pieces.

This entitles each member to use the club's facilities which consists of woodworking machinery and a tea room. The entrance fee is $2.00 per visit which covers electricity outlay or $5.00 for five consecutive days. New members must complete an induction to familiarise themselves with our safety issues and best practice of our machinery.

We are open Monday Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Any other times by appointment. We ask that all members give freely of their time if a need arises for community assistance. Eg. the St Marys floods, elderly or the infirmed who may need our practical support in doing small jobs. We believe in sharing woodworking skills and knowledge with all colleagues and value every members input.

Our welcome is extended to women as well. The Guild tries to be as self-funded as possible, thus our Sausage Sizzle at the markets and sale of wares. All monies raised are put back into the club.

The Say Cagerattler

A couple of months ago a good friend of mine told me of a rather over zealous (let's just say) decision and ruling by one of our prominent statutory bodies that will financially cripple or even curtail completely a much needed and appreciated service and outlet to this community. When he told me of this incredulous demand I actually couldn't believe it to be honest. The ruling is quite impractical and for my friend totally out of the question. It's potentially many thousands of dollars to satisfy this regulatory body. A bit more recently another local sports facility, one I know very well is also in a similar position with a State regulatory body over a piece of important infrastructure that has been pre-existing now for decades. This outcome has never and almost certainly will never again cause anyone any problems but this body is not keen it seems to set it aside quickly. In the club's view though, if the infrastructure involved is deemed to be removed there is very little likelihood that a suitable site can be found to allow for it's essential usage as the hotter months quickly approach. The alternatives are way beyond the financial means of the club which in turn gives them great concerns for the future. This is not overstating the situation. At least they have received support from the Council which is much appreciated and a meeting with the statutory body hopefully will help resolve the issue fairly soon.

The point of all this is straight forward. Surely in all these circumstances a case by case on their merit should exist. With my friend's situation surely there MUST be a sensible outcome given the location, the needs and the absolute minimum of risk that must now exist so many years on. Especially so given the precautions that were done by a previous owner also.

There has to be a successful outcome there somewhere. Similarly in the case of our local sports club, there must be a method or agreement that can allay the risk to the club itself. Maybe all that is needed is to give a written undertaking to the statutory body involved, that in the nigh on impossible likelihood that a road or access through the point in question is required in the future, that the club WILL THEN remove the infrastructure. It causes or has not caused in many decades past anyone problems and by necessity it's location is crucial to it's operation. Just needed is sensible discussion.

All I want to know is why most if not all of the statutory bodies like these above need to insist on sometimes quite unachievable outcomes, even when their representatives have been briefed on the circumstances of the people operating the facilities.

In both local cases these operators are essentially not for profit organisations and with no pre-disposition to gain livelihoods from the services provided to this town. Let it be known that if one or both have to financially comply with the requirements it is almost certain that these valued assets will be under serious threat of being able to continue as is. It's that simple and stark. All we need to ask the statutory bodies is to take what they are told into much consideration before they make their final decisions as much as courtesy as anything else... It's pretty darn important ... Believe me..

Qi Gong Healing workshop

American visitor, Barbara Longue, an expert in the field of Qi Gong took a group of ten through the basic healing exercises and techniques of the Internal martial arts, known as Qi Gong.

Various breathing, stretching, and postural alignment had us all on the edge of our seats, literally! We then learned self healing and clearing of energy fields of others.

It was an excellent day and we all achieved a great deal of learning about our bodies, and about the importance of clearing our energy fields, especially after working with others.

Police Report

Many readers would be aware that recently there has been a "Changing of the Guard" at the St Marys Police station. Sergeant Derek Singline has chosen to retire after 38 years as a sworn police officer and 1/C Constable Michael Spaulding has transferred to Northern Traffic Services, based in Launceston.

The new officers attached to St Marys station are Sergeant Sharmaine Ward, and Constable Chris Smithurst. Both officers were keen to transfer to St Marys and work in the area.

Sergeant Ward is the first female Sergeant to be attached to a station within the St Helens Division and is looking forward to the experiences that working in a country area brings, whilst Constable Smithhurst has a background in country policing and no doubt will be a capable foil for his new Sergeant. Both officers will be residing in police accommodation on the town which is a bonus for the community as this has not been the case for the last four years or so.

EDITORS INTERVIEW WITH SERGEANT SINGLINE PRE RETIREMENT

Editor- Sgt Singline, you are retiring after 38 years as a police officer, why have you chosen to retire?

Sgt Singline- I believe the time it is right for me now. It has been a long and generally enjoyable journey, but I need to give my family some quality time. There are so many other things I wish to do also.

Ed.- Have you enjoyed your time working in St Marys?

S.S.-Yes I have. It is so different from working in the populated areas of the state. Here you have the opportunity of meeting the people you are serving and forming real relationships with them. In the busier centres you don't have the time for this to occur.

Ed.- Is working in a smaller community more rewarding for you?

S.S.- I believe it is. I think you can measure your efforts more readily. When you know whom you're dealing with, you tend to get to the point and achieve a good outcome for all concerned. I believe it is important for a police officer to develop trust and respect within the community, in order for the community to feel safe and in turn assist its police in solving problems as they arise.

Ed.- Have you worked in other country areas?

S.S.- Yes, I was stationed at Deloraine for eight years, Zeehan for a year, and relieved at Longford, Westbury, Mole Creek, Sheffield and Latrobe for extended periods.

Ed.-What was the attraction to these stations?

S.S.- I come from a police background. A favourite uncle was a police officer for 43 years and he worked mainly in country areas. His philosophy was to "be available to help the public, sometimes not all wanted your help, but generally most did." I have subscribed to this throughout my career and believe in the country areas you are able to offer the most to the people you are serving.

Ed.-Was St Marys typical of the other country towns you have worked in?

S.S. No, each town is different and has its own character. After arriving here St Marys, it first reminded me of Deloraine, but on a smaller scale. There is a diverse pool of backgrounds with more interstate/overseas settlers in the area than I thought. There is a strong sense of identity and community within the valley, which I see as a big positive. The community facilities are generally good and the school community is vibrant with good leadership and parent participation. On the down side, it's a shame there are not more facilities/activities available for the local youth and the football club can't find a competition to accept them on a regular basis. I hope this changes in the near future for all concerned.

Ed.- Is there a down side to country policing?

S.S.- Being on call 24/7 at times can be very tiring and stressful, particularly if you have been called out a few times early in your block of shifts. The public would generally have no idea how many hours their local officer may work during some shifts. Also your privacy is compromised by virtue of your job and the scrutiny received must also be expected and avoided by conducting yourself in a professional manner. I'm also frustrated by the false loyalty some members of the public give to offenders. Don't they realise by not supporting their police the offenders only continue their conduct and cause further problems for others.

Ed.- How will you remember St Marys and the Fingal Valley?

S.S.- I will have some fond memories of the area. The characters I have met, but also I have found most people courteous and friendly. I have developed excellent relationships with some good people and upset one or two others, but you get that with the big jobs. I certainly won't be losing any sleep over them. It is my intention to return to the area on a regular basis to visit my friends/acquaintances and support the local community in what ever way I can. The scenery in the area is beautiful, just the drive into the valley on a clear day is enough to make you want to stay that bit longer and more importantly return another day in the not too distant future.

Ed.- Thanks for your time, all the best to your family, and have a happy, long retirement.

 $S.S.\mbox{-}Y\mbox{ou're}$ welcome. All the very best to you and your readers.

GEORGE TURNS 33

When I first met George he had been abandoned and his appalling physical condition, skeletally thin with deformed hooves, led to him being unwanted by anyone. He was 'that horse' which something should be done about but nothing ever was. Tragically this seemed to have been the case for much of his life with year after year of horrendous suffering. Never the less he had somehow managed to survive for thirty years.

I confess that initially I had my doubts as to whether rehabilitation was possible. I took him on anyway and today couldn't imagine life without him.

As well as the dreadful condition of his hooves I noticed that he would not graze effectively. Chewing grass seemed to cause him great discomfort thus explaining his starving despite living on a lush river flat.

I had him attended to by dentist Warrick Morgan, who found that George had nasty sharp barbs on his teeth that lacerated his cheek when he tried to chew. Mr Morgan showed great compassion for the pain George was enduring and for the relatively inexpensive cost of $70, filed off the barbs leaving smooth porcelain like surface. He also explained that the horses own bacteria would heal the wounds in his mouth as effectively as anything I could treat them with.

Thus George could eat and began to gain weight quickly. He was wormed as matter of course, but showed no signs of serious infestation. With much searching I finally found a qualified farrier, Gary Horobin, who also showed great compassion and treated Old George with the respect one might consider reserved for million dollar race horses. Georges hooves are now completely normal and though initially wary of the farrier, he now considers his visits a luxury and quite simply adores him.

The importance of teeth and feet in care of any horse cannot be over emphasized yet they continue to be overlooked by some owners. Any local pony/equestrian club will have contact details for equine dentists and farriers and be happy to help new owners with advice on feeding etc.

George is now a happy healthy cheeky old man. He is a well known Local Character and has taught several children the basics of horse riding.

On the 1st August several friends of George celebrated his 33rd birthday. My deepest thanks go out to everyone who has supported George and myself in the last couple of years. I could not have helped him alone. His extraordinary recovery is the result of a combined effort by some truly wonderful people. Once again Thank you. Marianne Downey.

St Marys Sports Centre Inc. news Kackhander

First to golf. There has been some recent confusion on Saturday starting times. Ever heard the phrase "You can please some of the people some of the time but you can't please all of the people all of the time"? No matter what is done in regard to start times at the club this is definitely the case. It's not intended to alienate anyone. Any changes are done to maximise player numbers and some weeks ago a change to 10.30 for 11am start was done for this reason.

If some golfers didn't notice the message at the club we are sorry. No one wants any player to miss out but please check the notice board regularly. The times for the Club Championships have been set to 10..00 for 10.30 am on Saturday 4th September and Saturday 11th September . It's for A B C and Veteran Grades, so hopefully as many as possible can take part this year.

A very big thanks to Ross and Tracey Bean at the Coach House Restaurant for kindly sponsoring last weekend's event. This is greatly appreciated by the club indeed and it hopefully will be a very regular event. Make sure you pop in and check out their wares too. It's great of them to get behind the club this way.

Congratulations to Col "Swanny" Payne for winning with 65 nett and runner up was Paul "Long suffering Tiger" Spilsbury with 67 nett. Nearest pin trophy was won by Trev "Bluebagger" Viney. Shame about the finals quick exit Trev coming up.

This Saturday is a hidden 9 hole event (28th August)

Now to bowls and a really big thanks to all those who came along last Sunday to really begin getting the green ready for the new season to start officially on October 3rd, Opening Day. We still have a lot to do including some seeding and top dressing, so if you can help out somehow it WILL BE GREATLY APPRECIATED INDEED. Please watch out around the club for the next working bee really soon. To all members. The membership invoices are going out about now. A special request to comply with some requirements is that we need a complete data base of details. The email stuff on your form is not essential but would be handy but the most important thing is your postal address to accompany your name. Thanks for your help here.

Anyway, until next time, good hitting and rolling....
