MILO CRICKET 2013

On 5th March 2013 Milo Cricket commenced on Tuesday afternoons at the St Marys Sports ground, over 6 weeks.

The participants learnt a range of cricket skills including batting and defensive techniques, bowling, fielding, and basic good sportsmanship skills. The groups also participated in a couple of games.

There were 46 registrations from this community in the program, what an amazing response! Thank you to the co-ordinator Craig Freiboth and all his helpers, I won't name you all as I might forget someone, but it couldn't have been run without you. It was a well organised and supervised program so thank you from all the parents

All participants received a cricket bat, cricket ball and a Milo cricket hat - and weren't the kids excited to receive them! It is hoped that this program will run again next year due to the overwhelming response.

St Marys Junior Cricket will resume in November so keep a watch for training days and times later in the year. Until then the Auskick Football Program has commenced. Auskick is run on Sundays from 10:00am at various venues around Break O'Day.

If you are interested in playing please call Fiona on 6372 2088 for further details. By Hayley Gilbert.

Land Gift Walk

As reported earlier this year the Tasmanian Land Conservancy (TLC) and the North East Tasmania Land Trust (NETLT) accepted a gift of a 50 acre block of forested land from the Schier Family of Falmouth.

On Sunday 28th April 2013, the block which is located on the north east side of the North Sister was the venue for members of NETLT, together with Val Schier, to walk through the forest reserves surrounding the block and experience first hand its conservation values.

Andrew Lohrey, President of the NETLT, thanked Val and her family for their generosity in freely giving this land and congratulated them on their commitment to preserving the natural values of forests in the North East.

To mark the occasion on this sunny afternoon Todd Dudley read the following from Our Land, Ourselves, "To say this is my home and I care about it enough to protect it, is the essence of citizenship, and to act on such words begins to move from isolation to community".

The TLC will hold the title of the Schier reserve while the yearly and local management duties such as weed control and rates will be the responsibility of the NETLT.

Editor Valley Voice.

I would like to personally thank Jan Sparks for her address at the 11am ANZAC Day Service, which I believe will be printed in today's Valley Voice. Unfortunately Jan due to poor health was unable to deliver it herself, which although delivered very well by sister Lorraine was unfortunate, for I believe from watching those there, if you had presented it, you would have received a standing ovation.

Thank you for sharing a small part of your experiences with me that were not in your address; truly amazing.

Yours sincerely, David Watkins 6 Clive Street St Marys TASMANIA 7215

A Tribute to Cher Ami (Dear Friend) For his Heroic Service

One of the most celebrated World War 1 stories is that of the "lost battalion" in France that was saved by a pigeon named Cher Ami. This six hundred man battalion was being shelled and wounded by friendly fire because they advanced too far into enemy lines. Their only hope of communication was by bird and this is where Cher Ami came to the fore and gave it his all. Germans fired on him resulting in the loss of an eye, a shot to the breast and most of his leg missing. Cher flew on regardless and did not stop until he reached the command post twenty five miles away. Cher still had the message signal attached to his injured leg. The message stopped the shelling and the battalion was saved. After healing Cher Ami was awarded the French "Croix de Guerre" for his heroic service. Cher lived until 1919 and after his death Cher was mounted and placed in the Smithsonian Institute.

The Quince Tree Cydonia oblonga

I had a conversation recently with visitors to our town about "that unusual looking tree in your back yard. (Is it a type of old fashioned pear?) ". It appears that they had seen a number of these trees, and in particular the fruit, in gardens around Tasmania and wondered about their origin and purpose. My reply that is was a quince tree met with further questions and it set me thinking about the tree which was such a common feature older Tasmanian gardens.

My research tells me that amongst the trees planted by Captain William Bligh on Bruny Island in 1792 was a quince tree.

the Further, successful cultivation of quinces is recorded as early as 1822. Close reading of the journals of early settlers, including Rev'd Robert Knopwood and William Lynne to name but two, shows that plant material was packed with care prior to departure from the United Kingdom in order that gardens may be established in

Jan Sparkes' Speech Delivered by Sister Lorraine Groves ANZAC DAY 2013

Despite the gathering storm clouds of war, the European civilians living in Singapore, Malaya and the Dutch East Indies (now Indonesia) continued to enjoy life. My father was in the Civil Defence Force, but until the devastation of Pearl Harbour on the 7th of December 1941 when war became inevitable, no plans had been made. Dad booked Mum, my two year old brother and I on a ship to Australia. Mum refused to go, how lucky we were as the ship was duly torpedoed with loss of all life!

Japanese forces took control of Batavia (now Jakarta) in March 1942 and set up camps to intern the European civilians, mainly Dutch, as "guests of the Emperor" from 1942 – 1945. My mother, ever practical, took matters into her own hands; she had some garden beds dug up and buried her silver ware and some pictures in linen bags. She also obtained three metal trunks in which she packed Dad's suits, sheets, towels, table cloths and one full of bandages, cod liver oil, jars of peanut butter, soaps and antiseptics, all life savers and it saved our lives.

In the meantime, Dad and all men and boys over the age of twelve, later ten, were taken away and imprisoned. We did not see him again for three and a half years. Women and children were left to fend for themselves and moved into the new camps with small pieces of furniture, bedding, clothing and our three trunks.

So it was in March 1942 we moved into the notorious Tjideng (pronounced Chee-deng) camp. Tjideng was a poorer suburb on the western fringe of Batavia, which was closed off now with barbed wire. At first it was under civilian administration and conditions apparently were not too bad, we were able to attend church services, shop for fruit and vegetables, and do our own cooking. However very soon the military took over and things deteriorated rapidly, with ever decreasing spaces, roll calls any time of day or night, often in driving rain or the heat of the day for hours on end. Food was now cooked in communal kitchens and the quality caused hunger, disease and death daily.

Over time the camp was reduced to a quarter of its original size, enclosed in bamboo, and the population grew from two thousand to ten and a half. No electricity, water from a dripping tap, no septic tanks, and during rainy seasons ankle deep in sewage. Lunch and dinner was a handful of rice and some rotten vegetables, two pieces of sour bread and occasionally a paste made from animal intestines. All women over sixteen years were in the labour force, repairing fencing, cleaning septics, growing vegetables, collecting garbage and unloading trucks of food stuffs.

We moved three times and finally ended up in a small storage area where my brother and I slept head to toe on the three trunks and mum on the floor on a thirty centimetre mattress.

After three and half years we, as a family, were reunited and my parents were able to recover the buried treasure which arrived with us in Australia in 1946.

The man responsible for the conditions in the camp was Lieutenant (later Captain) Kenichi Sonei, He was notorious for his cruelty, particularly during a full moon. He was sentenced to death by the War Crimes Tribunal on the 2nd of September 1946. Why look back on the past? Better to forget all the troubles. No one wants to look back to the dark days, but history matters and a testimony to not forgetting, makes the dead count for something.

One hundred and fifty million people have lost their lives in wars in the twentieth century and through courage and sacrifice, Australian and Allied Forces have done us proud.

Thank you.

Lest We Forget

A thank you to the St Marys Memorial Services Association Committee.

Raise Your Voice in the Valley: Singing Workshop May 12th

Susannah Coleman-Brown has recently returned to Tasmania to 'roost' after spending nearly ten years singing and performing in Victoria.

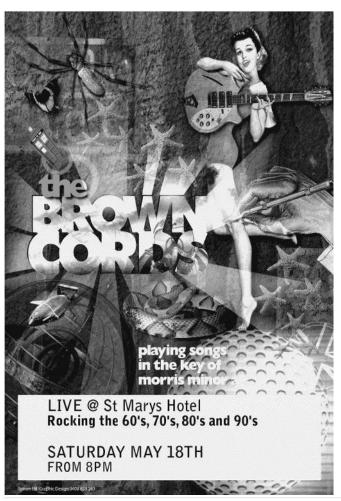

An award winning graduate of the Victorian College of the Arts, Susannah has sung with Australian folk artists such as Shane Howard (Goanna), Lou Bennett (Tiddas), Kutcha Edwards and has studied song writing with Kavisha Mazzella. She has also collaborated with jazz artists Christine Sullivan, Tony Gould and Nichaud Fitzgibbon, and performed multiple times on ABC Radio National's 'Music Deli' program.

Now based in a cosy cottage in Cornwall with partner Ray and baby Frances, Susannah has been busy squeezing in performances of her new EP 'Don't Run' which was recorded and co-produced by fellow east coaster Pete Cornelius. Susannah will be leading a Singing Workshop for adults in the St Marys Town Hall, 10am – 3pm, Sunday May 12th. The workshop is also open to youth aged 12 and over. The cost is $20 per person which can be paid on the day.

The event will include:

- A fresh batch of a Capella repertoire arranged by Susannah
- A musical blend of American, Celtic and Afro Cuban folk, contemporary pop and soul
- Introduction to vocal and performance techniques
- Complimentary lunch for attendees

Convict Stories from the Valley

Bridget Roarke – John Stokes

Since the first part of Bridget's story was published in the last edition of the Valley Voice new research has uncovered more details regarding the 1856 Boxing Day attack at the Stokes family hut on Charles Alford's lease property at Avoca.

The three armed men, James Bradbury, John Keefe and John England were convicts assigned to Charles Alford at New Prospect, Avoca. At Bradbury and Keefe's subsequent trial in Launceston, James Bradbury produced a lengthy written statement to the court in their defense wherein he described the event as a seasonal lark, a game of sticking up and of boulters. Bradbury went on to explain that the so called house raid was initiated at the request of Charles Alford who had discussed the details with Bradbury and intended the act to be a Christmas lark, a joke. John Stokes testified he knew the three armed men and did not think they would shoot him. Bridget and John Stokes gave evidence supporting John Keefe's statement that he returned the following day to apologize and hand back the stolen items. Under oath Charles Alford denied any prior knowledge or involvement in the house raid. Despite Charles Alford's testimony the Judge believed there was some form of lark, most likely encouraged by alcohol, behind the actions of the three armed men that evening. Bradbury and Keefe's death sentences were commuted to Life and 8 years imprisonment respectively.

Later the third armed man John England who had absconded was re-captured, brought to trial and sentenced to 7 years for his role that evening. All three men served out their sentences and gained their freedom. James Bradbury was the last to gain his freedom in 1877; at 50 years of age he had spent a total of over 25 years as a convict, and had been transported 3 times...another amazing convict story and a work in progress.

Bridget, also known as Catherine Roarker and Conny O'Rourke, had the strength of character that enabled her to survive the brutality of the Ross Female Factory, including hard labor and solitary confinement. A significant number of convict women assigned out as servants, like Bridget, found they were pregnant while under sentence. For convict women pregnancy, when still serving their sentence, was a serious offence no matter what the circumstances. Bridget, like the other convict women, was punished with solitary confinement in the dark cells and hard labor tasks. There were no repercussions for the men. As a result of harsh treatment and poor diet the convict women were often in poor health and many of their babies, born in the Convict Female Factories of Tasmania, were often very poorly. Tragically many of the babies died in early infancy, and sadly that is what happened to Bridget's baby son John who died one day after his birth in 1853 at Ross Female Factory.

Bridget eventually completed her sentence, gained her freedom and went on to make a new life for herself with her husband John Stokes in Fingal. John and Bridget had 12 children, all born in the Fingal district which was a thriving area with plenty of work on offer and access to locally grown food, goods and services. Churches and schools were being built and the new township of St. Mary's founded. Unfortunately for the Stokes family the good times did not last and some kind of catastrophic event or combination of events 15 years later completely changed their fate.

Life becomes increasingly difficult for the family and in 1873 Bridget and John Stokes admitted five of their children to the orphanage in Hobart.

- George Stokes (aged 4) was discharged as a servant at age 10 to John Bell and Alexander Millar in Franklin and absconded from Bell's property 12 months later
- Amelia Stokes (aged 7) was discharged as a servant to James Hughes, Oatlands in 1877 aged 11
- Francis Stokes (aged 8) was discharged as a servant at age 14 to John Dillion at Port Cygnet and absconded 2 years later
- John Stokes (aged 8) was discharged as a servant to Michael Rabbits in Port Cygnet in 1879 at age 14
- Margaret (Maggie) Stokes (aged 9) was discharged as a servant in 1878 at age 14 to Charles Stevens

John and his twin brother Francis were both discharged to people living in the same area of Port Cygnet and it was from there Francis absconded. Younger brother George was also living nearby in the Franklin area when he ran away. I have been unable to find any reference to the Stokes boys being found or returned to their Master or the Orphanage in any records. Hopefully the Stokes brothers, including younger brother George, hatched a plan to be reunited, successfully evaded the authorities and made a new life for themselves.

Two of John and Bridget's elder daughters married in Tasmania. Mary Ann married David Thomas in Longford in 1882 and they had 7 children. Another daughter Eliza married Frederick Smith in Ringarooma in 1883 and they had 3 children.

Information confirming the finer details of Bridget and John's later lives remains elusive and may not exist on public record. There is a possibility that John and Bridget's descendants may recognize their ancestors' story and hopefully they can provide the final chapter of their amazing lives. If you would like to add any further details to Bridget's story please contact me.

The Say By Cagerattler

I'd hate to be a pensioner or a single income family with a couple of kids as winter approaches. In a state gifted enjoy retirement more comfortably. with a Hydro-Electric power source it must still be a masarrives.

I was home all last week and not doing anything much pensioners and others twice, had the freezer, fridge and hot water cylinder ticking away as normal, flicked the odd light on, used the stove three or four times and the oven once, the TV only on when viewed and used the laptop infrequently. Pretty normal, but I suddenly realised early Wednesday that my $30 plus was about to run out, when 95% of the time it lasts a full week without much trouble. (I'm not usually there for 9-10 hours on weekdays.) This led me to think about low income meet certain requirements. families. It's no real hassle for me because I can just whack how much the day the power bill comes in the mail is dreaded - I've even heard of pensioners having to go to bed early to try and sleep through cold nights so they can get somewhere near paying the bill. A year or so ago I recall

The longest word in any of the major English language dictionaries is - pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis. It occurs chiefly as an instance of a very long word.

listening to an ABC radio talkback on this very thing happening in Tasmania and some very careful people really struggling...very sad when these people should be able to

A problem for many is older style houses that are sive burden on limited finances when the Electricity Bill basically inefficient and didn't lend to full insulation when built, with high ceilings, drafts, small windows, etc. Many struggling with power costs, at all, had a heater running occasionally, did the washing especially heating, have been in their properties for decades and can't upgrade without considerable expense. Maybe it's time our politicians thought outside the square a bit and offered some advice and assessments to low income earners to help find practical ways to improve their lot. What about having another look at re-introducing the insulation packages for many who didn't get around to it before, or maybe help with a direct rebate off their power bill if they I have no idea how the regulators figure out the power rates and decide rate a bit more on my card like I did on Wednesday but in a increases but I hope they employ all due diligence for the family circumstance that may be a lot harder to do. With a most vulnerable when they decide it's necessary. It's limited and often insufficient income I can only imagine annoying when you can afford it, but it's scary when you can't or you have to miss out on so much just so you can pay the bill.

What do you think?

Some of Billy Connolly's pet things to hate: When something is 'new and improved!' Which is it? If it's new, then there has never been anything before it. If it's an improvement, then there must have been something before it, it couldn't be new.

While riding his bicycle along the Main Rd. between Fingal and St. Marys, Mr. W. P. Clancy, of Mangana, State highways patrolman, was charged by a cow, and knocked to the roadway. Thomas Fitzgerald's Story

I wrote the following article while researching our family tree. I was born in Canada to Dutch parents, but have lived in Tasmania for over 40 years. I married 8^{th} generation Tasmanian Ian Summers in 1974 and became an Australian citizen (finally!) in 2008, although I was born into the British Commonwealth.

While carrying out my research, I read widely on Tasmanian history. Ian and I have also amassed a growing personal collection of books and documents. This has helped me understand what life was like for the early Tasmanian settlers, and it was as adventurous and exciting as any in the world, if not more so.

My research has, and continues to be, a fascinating journey. I thought it was time to share some of the wonderful things I have discovered about the people who contributed to this state's development despite often harsh and difficult beginnings.

This is the first in a series of articles to be published here. I hope you enjoy reading them as much as I did writing them!

On 17th February 1802, Thomas Fitzgerald and his younger brother John were charged with embezzlement from their employer, for separate offences. Thomas was convicted and sentenced to transportation for 7 years; John was acquitted as he was regarded as an apprentice rather than an employee. Thomas had been earning what was then quite a handsome salary of 45 pounds per year, plus his board and lodging. At the time of his conviction he had a wife and an infant son, Henry Thomas. (Henry Thomas eventually made his way to Van Diemen's Land and was reunited with his father in 1823. Henry had arrived in Sydney from London on the Elizabeth, and then made his way to the Derwent on the Mariner. He was 22 years old.)

Thomas was jailed at Newgate and then transferred to the Prudentia prison hulk at Woolwich. On 5th February 1803 Thomas left the hulk and boarded the Calcutta, along with 120 other convicts. A fellow convict was John Fawkner, father of John Pascoe Fawkner, who, with his mother Hannah, accompanied John Fawkner sr. on board ship. After some time, the ship sailed to Portsmouth where another 100 convicts were taken on board, along with a further 80 from nearby Langstone Harbour.

The Calcutta finally left England on 27th April 1803, in company with the Ocean, also carrying convicts.

The ships' first port of call was Santa Cruz, Teneriffe in the Canary Islands on 16th May. After a week, they left for Rio de Janeiro, arriving there on 30th June. After 3 weeks the ships

William Henry Fitzgerald grandson of Thomas Fitzgerald headed for Tristan da Cunha. They arrived on 2nd

August, where the two ships parted company. On 13th August, the Calcutta arrived in False Bay, Cape of Good Hope. This was the last stop before the final leg of the journey. On 25th August, the ship set sail for Port Phillip, and was battered by severe gales for almost 4 weeks.

Rev. Robert Knopwood was the ship's chaplain, and it was during this time that he ordered 3 dozen lashes for Thomas Fitzgerald, who had been charged with stealing linen and other clothes from one of the officers. Until then his behaviour had been exemplary, as he had been allowed the run of the ship, and had also given some tuition to some of the children aboard.

On 8th October 1803 King Island was finally sighted, but the weather was so that the Calcutta was forced to stand at sea for most of the night. At 5 a.m. on 9th October land at Port Phillip was sighted, and at 9.30 a.m. the Calcutta entered the harbour. The Ocean was already at anchor, having arrived 2 days previously.

Thomas and the other convicts were put to work as servants to the officers, clearing land for cultivation and making a road. Timber was also cut and transported from the Arthur's Seat region, which was back-breaking work. Lieutenant Governor Collins, who had also travelled on board the Calcutta, oversaw the work to establish the Port Phillip settlement. Some of the prisoners escaped - more than twenty - but only 3 ever returned. They were in a bad way and starving, and it was assumed the others had all died.

The exception was William Buckley, who was a fellow convict with Thomas. He lived with the indigenous people for 33 years before being reunited with the Europeans and then moving to Van Diemen's Land.

Collins later sent a request to Governor King at Port Jackson to transfer the group either to Port Dalrymple or the Derwent. Approval was given to go to the Derwent, so the Ocean, in company with the Lady Nelson, set sail in late January 1804 with a large group of the settlers, including about two thirds of the convicts (the Ocean returned later to collect the remainder).

Eliza Fitzgerald c. 1872.

Life at 'the Camp' began well. Small farms were soon established in the open country near New Town Bay and Millar's Bay. However, the settlers were not experienced farmers, and the climate was very unlike the climate in England. The population grew, but the stocks of food dwindled. Hunger became a harsh reality, and a kangaroo dog became a prized possession (worth up to 20 pounds, a large amount in those days). Collins sent a ship to India for grain, but she was lost. To add to the problem of food shortages, 500 Norfolk Island settlers were relocated to the Derwent. They were eventually allotted land to the northwest of the settlement, which became known as New Norfolk.

(To be continued in next issue.)

NEWS FROM THE GALLERY ARTIST OF THE MONTH: GLENYS ANDERSON

What treasures Glenys has made using her love of creative knitting! Try skillfully created articles on at The Gallery, behind Wombat Burrow Frames in Quail St. St Helens. So light to pack or post!

The twinkling light shines through the array of colours Glenys fastidiously styles into shawls, scarves and wraps. Are you looking for a wardrobe boost of wonder and delight; or a magical gift to make someone feel really special? Come and see what Glenys has knitted to tantalize your fantasy. The warmth from these exquisite items are as warm as this lovely lady who executes her designs with exactness.

Glenys was taught to knit when 8, something she thanks her mother for. Asian travels feed her appreciation of craft supplies and works, particularly in Seoul and Tokyo, and stimulate the usage of a wide variety of yarns found in spectacular array in Asian market places.

Glenys is thankful to be a part of a world-wide tradition, and part of a huge history and network of fellow-knitters.

Beginning with the texture and colour of the yarn comes inspiration as to what this calls her to make and the naming of the piece. Then comes the choice of pattern which she invariably adapts. Glenys enjoys working with lace although technically very challenging to knit. She loves the feeling of gliding yarn slipping through her fingers along with the intellectual stimulation and satisfaction which comes with mastering a "mathematical design." Glenys executes superb craftsmanship with exactness and humility.

Roses from the Heart – Christina Henri

Some readers may already be aware of Christina's project to create a permanent memorial to female convicts and their children born under sentence or accompanying their mothers on the convict ships. I met Christina two years ago when we both volunteered at Cascade's Female Factory in South Hobart.

Roses from the Heart captured people's imagination, and people from around the globe and across Australia have produced a bonnet for the project. Bonnets became very important to the convict women who often suffered the humiliation of having their heads shaved as punishment for a misdemeanour. Bonnets hid their shame and embarrassment. The idea was to make and embellish a cloth bonnet, reminiscent of the bonnets worn by convict women, for every women and child transported, over 25,000. The second phase of the project is to take the bonnets back to the British Isles, symbolically taking the girls home.

Many thousands of people have designed and created their own bonnet in memory of their ancestor or simply because they felt compelled to contribute to the project.

Between 25 - 30% of the convict women went on to have children born here. The remaining women died without ever having children and their stories are often overlooked. Christina's Roses from the Heart memorial acknowledges every convict woman and child's life, and often tragic death, under the convict system of transportation to Australia.

Christina travels to Ireland on Tuesday 7th May to attend a major event in Dublin were 10,000 bonnets will be displayed. She will also be visiting the United Kingdom and Europe with the bonnets. Tasmania's Chris and Judith Cornish from award winning Louisa's Walk convict drama production will be performing at the event. The bonnets will return to Tasmania later this year.

See some of the beautiful bonnets and follow their journey on Christina's Roses from the Heart facebook page - https://www.facebook.com/ChristinaHenriRosesFromTheHeart

NATIONAL POLLIE PEDAL RAISES OVER $700,000 FOR CARERS AUSTRALIA

By Guy Barnett Tuesday 7 May 2013

"The National Pollie Pedal from Adelaide to Geelong raised over $700,000 for Carers Australia," said Guy Barnett, former Senator today who cycled part of the journey.

"It was a fantastic effort all round from the politicians, sponsors and supporters ably led by the Hon Tony Abbott, Leader of the Opposition. I have been involved in most of the National Pollie Pedal events since 2002 and this was one of the toughest. Keeping up with Tony was a real challenge!", he said.

Janis McKenna, Chief Executive of Carers Tasmania said "Carers provide unpaid care and support to family members and friends who have a disability, mental illness, chronic condition, terminal illness or who are frail aged. We were pleased our own Tasmanian Guy Barnett was cycling for such a good cause."

Carers Australia is the national peak body representing Australia's 2.6 million unpaid carers.

(Guy Barnett, former Senator, is Diabetes Australia Ambassador)
