New bridges for St Marys and Upper Scamander

- Four ageing wooden bridges to be replaced with structures able to last a century
- Upgrades avoid the need for load limits, benefiting industries such as livestock, quarrying and logging
- Work on $665,000 project has commenced

Four timber bridges in the St Marys region and at Upper Scamander are being replaced, with structures designed to last over 100 years. Federal Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Darren Chester said the Australian Government is delivering on its election commitment and providing $45.3 million to land transport infrastructure in Tasmania.

"Providing road upgrades to connect communities and keep the Tasmanian economy moving is a key driver of the Australian Government's record $75 billion infrastructure investment package," Mr Chester said.

"Investing in these bridge replacements will cut maintenance costs in the future and provide efficiencies to industries such as livestock, quarrying and logging in the area."

Tasmanian Liberal Senator Jonathon Duniam said the works would also benefit local residents and tourists.

"Upgrading the four bridges will increase load limits, benefiting businesses in the region, while improving safety and access," Senator Duniam said.

"The new bridges will be built to last approximately 100 years, which will reduce the ongoing maintenance costs and increase the resilience of this essential infrastructure."

Break O'Day Mayor Mick Tucker said works on the project commenced this month and completion of the upgrades are expected in mid-2018.

"Two of the bridges are located on Harefield Road in St Marys and cross Green Valley Creek and Break O'Day Tributary. Another is on Cloverbanks Road over St Patricks Creek, while the fourth bridge is located on Upper Scamander Road at Upper Scamander," Cr Tucker said. The Australian Government has committed $300,000 and Break O'Day Council $365,000 in total to replace the four bridges

Mary Knowles has been recognised with a Medal of the Order as part of the Queen's Birthday Honours List for her service to the Northern Midlands community and local government.

After surviving an abusive relationship, she found community support helped her through.

"I was a bit blown away by the support I got," she said. "I ended up in the little town of Rossarden ... I couldn't have ended up in a better place, the people were so accepting."

It was there that she got involved in volunteering.

She started off as a volunteer ambulance officer, which she has continued since 1989, while also becoming involved in the Distance Education Parent Association, Tasmanian Women in Agriculture and the Family Violence Consultative Group.

In 2010, Mrs Knowles was inducted into the Tasmanian Honour Roll for Women.

"I feel passionate about making sure small communities are recognised. It's one of the main reasons I stood for council."

She has been representing the Northern Midlands district since 2009.

Domestic violence is an issue she wants to raise more awareness of.

"People on the street don't see what's going on behind closed doors," Mrs Knowles said.

She did not think there had been a change in the rate of violence committed, and she is driven to do what she can to offer support.

"I'd like to encourage all councils to do something. Some councils are doing a really good job, but I'd like all councils on board," Mrs Knowles said.

"Health of the community is part of the role of councils, not just rates and rubbish."

She has approached her council to use street signage to show their support for women experiencing domestic violence so they know they can get out and get help.

Even listening could make a difference, she said.

Despite her hard work, Mrs Knowles was quite surprised when her letter arrived announcing she would receive a Queen's honour.

By being enthusiastic, she hoped to bring an energy which would encourage more people to donate their time to a cause.

It is not only her local community she helps, Mrs Knowles also travels to parts of Africa every second year to help out in orphanages and poorer communities.

Mary lives at Gipps Creek, 37km drive into the hills behind Avoca, and has been part of the volunteer ambulance service known as the Avoca Angels almost since she moved into the district 20 years ago. She works at Avoca School as an aid, runs the Red Cross group and helps coordinate the community garden.

"We grow vegies and each Thursday, the children cook something from the garden," she said. Mary is a member of the Greater Esk Tourism group set up two years ago to promote the area as a tourist destination. She has helped produce a booklet on the history of Rossarden and Storys Creek which is handed out to visitors taken on bus tours of the area as one of the fund-raisers for the annual Christmas party.

A case study from the Australian Association of Stud Merino Breeders
Monday June 5, 2017

Merinos push producer profits up at Campbell Town

MERINOS consistently return profits of up to $60 per dry sheep equivalent and $40/DSE for lambs at Sam Lyne's Riccarton property at Campbell Town, Tasmania.

Sam farms with his father Crosby and brother Angus, running 7300 ewes on the 2600-hectare property, with 3500 of the ewes run as a self-replacing Merino flock and the remainder mated to terminal and composite sires. He said running a self-replacing Merino flock had helped to spread risk with dual income streams from meat and wool.

"Meat breeds are just relying on a strong lamb market," he said. "We sell Merino lambs to a nearby abattoir that opened up a market five years ago with the Middle East, and they like 12-18kg Merino lambs. It allows us to sell our Merino wether lambs earlier and still make decent money. If we were to go down the meat breed road it would be hard to get back into Merinos, whereas Merinos offer that flexibility. If you have the bigger meat breeds, you have less sheep and you have the associated feed requirements which isn't ideal for us in our unreliable climate."

The Lynes run Merinos at 12.5 DSE for winter grazed land, which includes dryland and some irrigated land, producing a profit of about $500/ha. In comparison irrigated barley at a 7-tonne yield, at $250/t has a profit of about $850/ha. While dryland barley at a 5t yield, has a profit of about $450/ha.

"We have a pretty diverse system, sheep and crops work well together on our property and in a year like we have just had, the high prices for wool and meat make up for the poor cereal prices," Sam said. "Making $500/ha from sheep is good especially if you consider the low risk involved. Sheep also have an economic benefit in weed control and removing crop residues."

Sam said their Merinos had a more medium-frame, meaning handling was easier. "Merinos aren't as big so they are easier to handle, which is better for the shearers," he said. "There's more long-term sustainability for everyone. The country we have is ideal Merino country, in a dry year we would have to keep the feed up to another breed whereas Merinos don't have the feed requirements that these other breeds need. Then, you also have the wool which is going really well at the moment and lambs are very comparable (in price) at the moment."

In late February, Merino wether lambs, 14 kilograms dressweight, August-drop, sold for $6.50/kg dw equivalent to $96 a head.

"It's a very comparable price to crossbred lambs," he said. "Merinos have the potential to do just as well as first-cross lambs."

Wool prices have already been locked in for a quarter of the Riccarton clip at 1530 cents a kilogram clean for June, and rates were also locked in for July 2018 at 1650c/kg clean. On average, the Lynes produce 45,000kg of greasy wool a year. Wool is marketed through Roberts Limited and sold in Melbourne.

"Our main aim is to produce lots of wool with good strength," Sam said. "We have 19-micron wool and cut 5.5-6kg per head with an average yield of 72 percent, but this can vary depending on the year and what the ewes have been run on." Of the 2600ha property, 460ha can be irrigated, so dual-purpose crops are grown, and are currently being watered for autumn feed. Sam says on the two properties they run, there is a mix of red loam soil, open tussocks and improved pastures.

Lambs are dropped in August, in-line with seasonal feed availability. Rams have been sourced from a well-known stud in New South Wales since 2011, partly to shift to poll genetics but also to improve fertility and improve the early maturity of lambs. Since the switch, lambing percentages have risen from 80pc to 100pc. The Lynes have also scanned for dry, single and multiple pregnancies during the past three years.

Lambs are sold by June, before they cut two teeth. They are weaned and run on stubbles, weighed, then sold on-hooks once they fit into required weight categories, either the 12-18kgdw bracket to Tas Quality Meats, or if more than 18kgdw sold to Victoria.

"It depends on what price and seasonal conditions as to where we sell them," Sam said. "If prices are better we can keep until heavier, regardless though we want to get them off by June to free up feed before ewes lamb in August."

Sam said he supported the Australian Association of Stud Merino Breeders' Breed More Merino Ewes Campaign. "I like the flexibility of the Merino," he said. "If you have a fertile ewe that is producing plenty of lambs and quality wool, I find it hard to beat."

2017 St Marys Community Car and Bike Show

Photos by Glyn Johnson, Bob Oates and Rod McGiveron

Nadine and Friends

Sitting at my kitchen table having breakfast I watched the Main Street fill and thought idly I wonder what sort of a day it will be? There was a bit of Facebook chatter about the weather and the usual speculation about numbers, food and other things and then I heard the distinctive rumble of "Nadine" and felt the collective air punch which says ... Yes, we have a Car Show!

In conversation with people on Monday it is very clear that she is a firm favourite with us all. For those of you who haven't met her, "Nadine" is a beautifully restored Clipper bus belonging to a local Valley family, and many were delighted to see she had two worthy companions, including one painted in the livery of the old "Green Line Coach Line", the company which serviced rural Tasmania for much of my youth.

Bikes, both modern and classic, cars too numerous to list, some terrific restoration jobs, a few works in progress and some pending projects - it was a great display.

I won't embarrass myself or annoy the car fanatics by expressing an opinion about any of them except to say I loved the car and matching boat ... in particular the chrome duck on the car bonnet. The Sheffield fire truck is a credit to those who have done her up and last but by no means least; well done to the organising committee and those who volunteered on the day

The Say, by Cagerattler

When it comes to special events we are indeed very lucky to live in this little town of ours.

First, the amazing efforts of the Pacing Club that keep providing an amazing event, run entirely by local volunteers, and is genuinely looked forward to by so many harness racing patrons from all over, annually. This crew do a phenomenal job and are inspiring. This year, despite huge obstacles and uncooperative weather, they ran the event at Easter and did incredible things.

Next, The Woodcraft Guild Open Day is a great family day for visitors and locals alike, and cannot happen without the fantastic organisation of the men and women of the Guild. Great stuff.

Now there is another equally fantastic crew that run the St Marys Community Car and Bike Show every June. Yesterday all those who attended this year's event would have been blown away by the amount of keen volunteers (the green vested army), that had everything sorted, and the amazing live music, kids entertainment, a ton of incredible stalls, motoring providers, fantastic food and beverages, and a brilliantly laid out assortment of well loved cars, bikes and buses. As I walked down Main Street it was fantastic to see so many people happily browsing, joking, talking and literally having a ball on a cool winters day. This event is quickly becoming a pretty special Tasmanian motoring event and I spoke to lots of visitors who just love coming. Most of them look forward to attending every year. This is due to the dedicated work of this intrepid crew, too numerous to mention and for fear of forgetting those whom I'm not aware of (and there'd be a few of them no doubt).

The 2017 event was just amazing, no other word could describe it, and to provide a family day like this in winter is a master stroke and why so many visitors want to come.

CONGRATULATIONS!!

One night on the phone recently Macca said "Why don't you come and play golf with us next Saturday?" It's been about five years since I picked up a club.

As Macca is expert in this, he made a pretty good argument why I should.

Six of us played. The previous weeks there had been similar numbers. Once again, the St Marys Sports Centre Inc. volunteers keep providing something most towns our size can only dream about. The club facilities are plain fantastic, the clubhouse with the recent renovations is a beautiful place to be. The golf course, after a lot of hard work by a small group of keen volunteers, is about as good as it's ever been and I should know, being a member for over 40 years and greenkeeper for almost a decade. The work the lads have done on the greens especially is incredible, and the bowls green is looking fantastic as it hibernates for winter. This little club has SO MUCH to offer - it truly does. I urge everyone, both long term St Marys residents or new to the town, to contact the club and look at what you get for a very very reasonable membership. It will genuinely, pleasantly surprise you. Needless to say, I'm glad Macca reminded me about why we should be very happy to have this terrific club.

See what I mean about why we should be grateful? We have these awesome volunteers who provide so much, with these examples and others not mentioned.

What do you think?

St Helens St Marys Community Bank® Break O'Day Community Strengthening

Following on from the provision of recent advice to the Break O'Day Community that the St Helens/St Marys Community Bank® has extended its share offer for a further four months, the Bank Chairman, Mr Andrew MacGregor, has advised that work is now underway to commence the recruitment of new staff.

Mr MacGregor said that the bank will be seeking to employ a full time Manager and a full time Customer Relations Officer together with two part time Customer Service Officers. Advertising for the positions will commence as soon as the bank reaches 85% of its share application target. "It's all up to the community now," said Mr MacGregor. "They have told us that they need a Community Bank® to help strengthen the community, so it's now time for less community chatter and more action in the form of share purchases."

Mr MacGregor also advised that the building plans for the fit-out of the St Helens Branch were nearing completion and that tenders for the works would be sought when all necessary approvals had been obtained.

"It's a very exciting time for the Break O'Day Community," said Mr MacGregor, "with the Community Bank® being established at the same time as the new St Helens Hospital, with the development of the local mountain bike trails, a proposed re-development of accommodation at Medea Park Residential Care and several significant tourism developments on the go, the region is buzzing."

Anyone interested in purchasing shares in the St Helens/St Marys Community Bank® can obtain a copy of the newly-issued Supplementary Prospectus at the Bendigo Agency in Cecilia Street, St Helens, at the Break O'Day Council Chambers in St Helens and at Gone Rustic in Main Street, St Marys.

Letters to the Editor

The plan by the Forestry Industry to buy up all of the farms in the Fingal /Esk Valley and convert them to plantation forest should be of concern to all of us.

Thousands of native animals, including rare and endangered species, will be needlessly slaughtered by shooting or poisoned baits, and probably aerial spraying.

As this area is the catchment and headwater for the drinking water for the city of Launceston, I have to ask, "does anyone have the right to poison or greatly reduce the quantity by planting large areas of thirsty trees?"

The beautiful town of St Marys, with its unique mountains and valley, is a tourist gem, which is attracting even more visitors from around the world.

Are we to allow a few greedy people to put all of this at risk for personal short term gain

We owe it to our children to see that it is prevented from happening

HEALTH NOTES - FEAR OF DOGS

What can be done to help a youngster who is afraid of dogs? This happens quite often when a child has been frightened by a dog while very young.

If a child shows fear at sight of a dog, it's quite wrong to try to urge the youngster to become friendly with the 'nice doggie'. The more you do this, the more likely he is to hold back.

Instead, reassure the child by acknowledging to him that it's natural for 'small' children to be afraid of 'big' dogs, and let him see that there's no need to be ashamed of this.

You can interest him indirectly, too, by telling him stories about pet dogs or let him see one of the many 'doggie' TV shows. Give him a toy dog to play with, or you might even go so far as to buy him a puppy and encourage him to help prepare his food so that he will feel that he is playing a part in his life.

Many children fear dogs and quite a number don't lose their fear until they reach school age, or later - particularly if unwise adult handling has made their fears worse. Well-meant 'coaxing' attempts may be harmful and being told to 'look after the dog' may be too great a responsibility for a nervous child.

Some sort of balance has to be struck so that the child neither cowers in fear at sight of a dog, or runs up to every dog he sees to hug or pat it. Usually, though, the child will work it all out quite satisfactorily for himself. Naturally, if it begins to be a 'phobia' with him, then medical help must be sought quickly.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir,

My congratulations on your first edition of the "Valley Voice". May it prosper and give the citizens of this Valley a chance to express their hopes and opinions on what can be done in this very neglected area.

A start is a much needed dressing up by the Public Works Dept. of that vacant block which is the most prominent corner in our district. This is the gate-way to St. Helens and Swansea and passed each year by thousands of tourists and locals who can glimpse over the piles of rotting rubbish and fine view of our Community Hall framed through the rusted bottomless sanitary pan that nestles among the debris.

Couldn't this block have a lawn - seats and perhaps a tree to allow our elderly citizens and tourists awaiting buses etc. to rest.

Many times I have seen and talked to tourists squatting on the steps of our Community Centre and even on the edges of our pavements, awaiting buses. These people should have some consideration.

Finally, what about a public convenience,

Ruth Gill.

Rossarden Progress Association: Annual General Meeting with a General Meeting to follow is Monday August 14, 2017 commencing 3pm at the Fire Station. All welcome

Small town being terrorized

The small town of Rossarden has less than 50 residents, 25 of whom are members of the Rossarden Progress Association, 15 are fully trained fire fighters and the fire brigade is supported by Tas Fire, Avoca and other valley brigades.

The Progress Association is a Landcare Group and has recently been a part of a Green Army project tackling the broom weed infestation.

Until last October, Rossarden had a very successful museum which was a central hub for the very active vibrant community. However, in October the museum was burnt down, beautiful trees in the park have been cut down, the fire station was broken into and the truck disabled, all tools and the community defibrillator stolen and now people's homes are being targeted with one burnt down last week. When is this going to end?

The police need statements and proof but locals are living in fear of retribution. This is so not fair. Why should locals have to leave the town they love and have worked hard for? The terror has to stop and people need to feel safe again.

Mary Knowles, Gipps Creek.

End of an era

It is with much regret and emotion I have to advise that the members of the Lions Club of St Marys Inc. we have decided that we no longer have the capacity or membership to effectively continue.

This was a decision not taken lightly and has been on the agenda for some time.

Of the remaining members with ages ranging between 70 and 92, and the majority in the mid to late seventies at various levels of health and mobility, you reach a point where unfortunately the batteries are getting flat.

Our Club was Chartered on 15th/12/1975 with 37 energetic, young members. As of 7/6/2017 our Club was made up of 3 Charter members, John McGiveron, Kevin Faulkner and Len Miles, with David Young (1982), Jake Smythe (1983), Ruth McGiveron (2002), Peter Troode (2006) and Henry Holder (2010). These few members running the Club ranged in ages from 70 to 92!

We have tried on many occasions to recruit but in a small town with many other Groups the potential members are just not there.

We realise not having a Lions Club in St Marys will leave a big gap in our Community, such as donations and assistance to sick and needy, our School, Fire Brigade, Hospital, Ambulance, Playground and BBQ equipment, house fires, The Christmas Party, Parade, town decorations and Santa Letters to name just a few.

Over the last 42 years we have raised over $750,000 that has been distributed in our Community, something our members are extremely proud of.

We would like to thank the community for the ongoing support over the past 42 years which has allowed us to support you.

This Apple Slice uses only five ingredients, it's really easy to make (and even easier to eat)!

Ingredients

- 2 cups self raising flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 apples, peeled, cored and diced (1cm)
- 125g butter or margarine
- 1 egg

Directions

Toss apples with self raising flour and sugar in a medium mixing bowl. Melt butter in a small saucepan on the stovetop or in a small bowl in the microwave. Stir in egg. Pour butter and egg into the apple mixture and mix until combined. Spoon into a greased and lined slice tin. Bake at 180 C for 35 to 40 minutes or until the top is golden brown and a skewer inserted into the middle comes out clean. Keeps for about 3 days.

Break O'Day Council to hold Report Back Sessions on the 10 Year Strategic Plan.

June 7, 2017

After two weeks of consultation and more than a month of processing and distilling down the huge amount of material

10 year Strategic Plan Report Back Community Sessions

After Consulting with the community and compiling all your feedback, we have now drafted a 10 Year Strategic Plan for the Break O'Day area and we want to share it with you!

We are holding four Report Back Community Sessions at four locations and hope you can attend so we can explain how your thoughts and ideas became the plan!

Once the Report Back sessions are complete, there will be a 28 day, written submission process which is your opportunity to formally comment on the Plan.

presented by the community at the Community Conversation Sessions, Council is now ready to share and discuss the draft 10 Year Strategic Plan with the community.

In April the Break O'Day Council held 10 Community Conversation sessions and ran an online survey in order to capture the ideas and aspirations of the community regarding the future of the Break O'Day area. All this information, some 100 pieces of butchers paper and more than 1000 sticky notes, has now been recorded, compiled and filtered down into a concise draft of the 10 Year Strategic Plan.

As the community were not privy to the process of how their thoughts and ideas became the plan, Council would like the opportunity to explain just how the plan came together. In order to do this, Council will hold four Report Back Community Sessions at four locations around the area.

The idea of these sessions is to explain how the community's thoughts became the Vision, Goals, Key Focus areas and strategies of the Plan. The sessions will be held from Monday June 26 – Thursday June 29 from 5.30 – 7pm at the following locations; Monday, Scamander Sports Complex, Tuesday, the Portland Hall St Helens, Wednesday St Marys Sports Complex and Thursday Fingal Valley Neighbourhood House. "Drafting the plan has been a long and laborious process but we really wanted to make sure that it reflected what the community had told us during the Community Conversations," Mayor Mick Tucker said. "We really want this plan to be embraced by the community as it is not just about Council, it is about all of us and unless we all work together towards a common goal and vision, we will never get anywhere."

Once these sessions are complete, a 28 day submission process will open which is when the community will be able to make formal comment on the plan.

Break O'Day Council announced as finalist in the Great Eastern Driver Awards 2017

Break O'Day Council is proud to have been named as a finalist in the Great Eastern Driver Awards 2017. The Council was nominated for the Community Initiative category for their dedication and commitment to bringing the economic and social benefits of Mountain Bike Tourism to the area.

Break O'Day Mayor Mick Tucker said Council had been very thorough in their approach to this project.

"For more than 12 months we have been working behind the scenes with various stakeholders and organisations to ensure the project was economically viable, able to inject much needed revenue into the local economy, be low-impact and environmentally sustainable as well as have social benefits to the wider Break O'Day Community," he said.

But despite the honour of being a finalist in their own right, Clr Tucker said Council is even more proud of the fact that there are eight other finalists from the Break O'Day area including, Bay of Fires Bush Retreat, Bay of Fires Eco Tours, Bay of Fires Winter Arts Festival, Coffee Away, Greater Esk Tourism, Pelican Point Sanctuary, The Weldborough Hotel and White Sands Estate.

He said seeing so many finalists from the area was a real "feather in the cap" for Break O'Day and a good reflection of the growing tourism sector on the East Coast.

"It's great to see our tourism operators and businesses receiving this kind of recognition for their hard work, and from such a mix of services and locations across the municipality," Clr Tucker said. "In the last 12 months we have experienced a real growth in visitation and it is pleasing to see new and existing businesses providing various goods and services to keep visitors in our area longer. We hope that when the St Helens Network is built it will encourage our visitors to stay even longer, help contribute to a much more stable year round tourism industry and bring even more people to our beautiful corner of the world."

GAME ON

For many, getting fancy with the Weber might include some lovingly prepared kebabs or butterflied prawns, however, for an entire movement wafting its way across the country, "low and slow" cooking is introducing Australians to the taste sensations of real barbecuing.

The latest opportunity for the uninitiated to meet the converted occurred this long-weekend as part of the Bay of Fires Winter Arts Festival, with 11 teams from across three states stoking their kettles and taking aim at the whopping $5500 worth of cash prizes on offer during Round 18 of the Australasian Barbecue Alliance (ABA) national competition.

Whilst debate rages in the United States over what constitutes real barbecue (some say that it can only be a whole hog, some say the shoulder is acceptable, whilst others recognise beef and chicken), the ABA recognises five categories being; Pork Ribs, Lamb, Pork, Brisket, and Chicken.

Zane O'Neal and Kye Andrews

Some of the crowd at BBQ announcements

With each type of protein requiring its own tender touch, entering a competition of national scale would deter many, however, the challenge wasn't too big for students of St Helens District High School who, fielding two teams, rolled up their sleeves and took on Grill Masters from Tasmania, South Australia, and Victoria.

Despite admitting to "no practice and getting straight in", members Zane O'Neal, Kye Andrews and their team mates did the district proud, receiving the loudest cheers from the crowd. Unfortunately the accolades stopped there, with the boys and other local entry (Binalong Smokers) all going home empty handed.

The same cannot be said for overall winners "The Smoking Joint", a South Australian-based team who scored a whopping 343 out of 360 in the lamb category, to bag the prestigious title of "Grand Champions". The next round of the competition will be held in Adelaide.

Part 2

I used to go down to Duck Reach and catch eels. There used to be a huge wooden dam wall down there before they built the Trevallyn Dam wall in the early 50's. Now, what I used to do was, I'd get a long copper needle about a metre long and also a big bloody gob of worms in a bucket, and using a hemp strip cut from a spud bag, I would sew and twist the worms and hemp all the way down the copper needle and just drop it in the water. When the eel would bite the worms, it's teeth would get stuck in the hemp strip and I would just pull it out of the water and cut the buggers throat. Didn't need a hook or a net. It sounds strange, but it was a very effective way of catching them. And I caught hundreds over the years. Big bastards too.

Some of us locals would go and cut wood down near the end of Mt Leslie Road. Wattle and sheoak mainly. All cut by hand. Axes and splitters. 15 or 20 tonnes at a time. We would cart it all up the hill and then sell it to all the local businesses, including the bakehouses for their bake ovens. It would burn really hot, especially wattle. Perfect for their ovens. When I was 85 years old, I walked down to Duck Reach from my house with an old mate of mine. At the end of Mt Leslie Road, all the way down the old gully. It bugged me, but it was great to go back to the place where I spent so much of my younger life. The Gorge and the river are as close to paradise as you'll get.

We rarely bought groceries. Didn't have to. Grew all of our own veges. Lived off rabbits and pigs. I'd salt up the meat and hang it up from a tree and then keep it in an old safe for cooling.

My vegetables used to win many prizes at the local shows. Parsnips, carrots and pumpkins. At the Longford Show, Evandale Show, St Marys and Launceston. My carrots were a metre long. I used to dig a 3 foot deep trench and fill it with oat husks. Plant the carrots and they would come out absolutely huge. Carrots only stop growing when they hit something. Or I would fill a 44 gallon drum with pea straw and the same thing would happen. The biggest carrots you've ever seen. Some would weigh 2 kilos. And very tasty I might add. My pumpkins were so big they took six blokes to lift them. (laughs). Tasmanian soil you see. It's magic. A bit of farming know how didn't hurt either.

I had a racehorse named E-Reckt. Don't ask me why I called him that, it's a bit blue, but let's just say he was always in an excited state! (laughs) He won the Deloraine Cup one year. I also had a greyhound named Young Beaver. He did alright too.

Our boys have always been hard workers and good fellas and we have always been a pretty tight unit. We used to go up to the Highland lakes a lot to fish and go shooting. Up near Liawenee. Our boys both married and had their own families. Maurice and Jenny have three boys Daniel, Gavin and Andrew. Ross and Susan have three daughters Rebecca, Pamela and Sarah. Sarah has two little ones Kobi and Rubi. All of them are great kids. So I have six grand kids and two great grand children. I always loved being a dad and as I got older, being a grandfather.

Lola and I had a very happy marriage and she helped everything on the farm tick over nicely. I always looked forward to knocking off and talking about our day. She was always smiling and stuck by me through thick and thin.

Towards the end of 1979, Lola was diagnosed with ovarian cancer. She went down very quickly and as she started to fade, near the end she was paralysed. Could not move a muscle and she was in a lot of pain. When I spoke to her, the poor love would let me know she understood what I was saying by blinking at me. It was a terribly painful time for her. For the whole family. Lola passed away on the 20th of June 1980. So I have now been on my own since then. Lola was the love of my life and I have never had any interest in the romance stuff since she passed. She was the only woman for me and I still miss her terribly.

At our son Maurice's wedding

Lola and I with our granddaughter footy games for 28 years. I was also a long time treasurer there and I'm also a life member at that club. I was very honoured to get that trophy and it takes pride of place in my cabinet.

My family has a long farming history here in Tasmania and I am very proud of our heritage. The majority of my ancestors are buried in the little graveyard just down the road in Westbury Road, opposite the nursery near St Pats. I was the voluntary maintenance man at the graveyard for 20 years.

Prospect has been my home for 84 years now and I have seen a lot of people come and go and the landscape change a lot.

A little while ago, I was invited to go back to Summerhill Primary School to celebrate their 100th Anniversary and I just loved it. I got my mug in the paper and the littlies were wonderful and I felt very welcome and privileged to be there.

I have now lived in this house on the corner of Mace Street for 65 years. I'll die here too. I have no interest in going into a care home. My two boys Maurice and Ross are my mainstays and they help me out a lot. Ross is here most days, making sure I eat and have my medication. I am not interested in going into a home, selling my bloody house I've worked for all my life for just to pay for it. I'm just fine on my own thank you very much. I understand that some people have to do that, but not for me.

I always believed in working hard, helping people out if they were in strife and always show respect to your neighbours. Prospect is where me and my family have spent our lives and I love the place. Thanks for popping in mate".

Please feel free to share Fred's story. It's a great snapshot of Launny history.

Life In A Nutshell Author : Joseph Lyons June 1, 2017

I put my mother in a home a few months ago when her Alzheimer's became too much for me to deal with. Now here I stood with early-onset, refusing to go the same route.

The doctor nodded. He knew why I'd signed up. My job was simple. Travel forward, wait for a cure and for them to figure out how to send someone back, then return.

"This thing gonna get me where I need to go?"

"You're in a giant metal nutshell, you won't technically be going anywhere. If it helps, the entire facility could burn down, have the power shut off or be bombed to hell. You would still step out of there completely whole in five years."

"Great. If there's a nuclear war I could be the last man on earth."

"And you still wouldn't get a date." I smiled. He was trying to relax me. I already knew this was going to hurt a lot. Every single molecule broken down in an instant and slowly reformed over five years. Not quite how I had imagined time travel would work and certainly nothing to look forward to.

"See you soon." He flipped a switch. I had been selected because my disease meant I was highly motivated but also physically capable of enduring the stresses incurred. I clung to my motivation for the three seconds I remained conscious. I couldn't tell if my bones had been ripped out or the skin had slumped off. In those three seconds I'd been skinned, de-boned and flash fried alive. I did not want to experience it again.

I fuzzily regained consciousness. Dr Blake stared in through the port-hole. He grinned, nodded and walked away.

"Hey." I staggered to bang on the door. "You got something for me?"

"Not yet Karl. But we can send you further. See you in ten years."

It was probably a kindness I didn't have time to catch my breath. Like ripping off a band-aid on two, when you promised to count to three. The pain came and went and apparently so did ten years. Dr Blake was still there, greying now.

"The good news is we have the cure. Bad news is we can't send you back yet. See you in twenty."

This time I did brace, not that it helped. Instantly awake I fell through the door. Dr Blake stood tall, and with a full head of hair. Maybe they'd found the cure for baldness too.

"Are we done?"

"Yes Karl." He handed me a USB drive as I was helped to a wheelchair. He pushed me down a few corridors to a similar room and set up with a virtually identical pod.

"This one going to send me back?"

"It is." He wheeled me close and helped me in. The door shut noiselessly behind me.

"Wait, won't I fall apart? When I came forward the chamber held me together. Isn't this the same?"

"It is."

"Well how will I stay together if the past isn't ready for me?"

"Ask me when you get there." He flipped a switch. Lots of pain before I came round just the same.

Dr Blake opened the door and stepped in. I'd dropped to my knees exhausted. He took the flash drive and stepped out. "Gentlemen, we now hold the cure for every disease the world over for the next thirty five years." Cheers erupted.

"Doctor. What should I do with the patient?"

"Send him back fifty years. No-one will ever know he existed."

The door closed and the pain set in.

Reversing Boat Trailer Triggers Chorus Of “Woo” Sounds From Nearby Dads

29 January, 2016 13:30

CLANCY OVERELL | Editor

While attempting to reverse his boat trailer closer to the water during a family skiing trip, local dad Brett Cawley (44) has been left in a state of confusion by the amount of “woo” sounds he was met with by bystanders.

At the popular north-coast camping and cabin holiday destination, Crakatunny Lagoon, it appears that every male over 17 is equally responsible for any vehicles that are geared into reverse. It is believed that rough estimations of distance and acceleration were offered to Mr Cawley from as far as 50 metres away, as bystanding dads from the surrounding thirteen campsites began focusing their attention on his delicate maneuverings of both a four-wheel-drive and boat trailer.

“It wasn’t as helpful as they thought,” says Brett.

“There were blokes that I have never seen before rushing over to direct me. I had asked my brother-in-law to spot me and he was doing a good enough job,”

“Next thing I knew I had about twenty blokes yelling “ooop”, “woo” and “give ‘er some” – they were all conflicting instructions,” With several more days booked at their Crackatunny campsite, Mr Cawley says he will wait until the very end before he decides to turn on his car again.

“These blokes are all over me. I’m really not looking forward to some of the odd advice they start spewing when I try to light up the campfire,”

“Oh, and the Webber, for f---’s sake, these blokes look like real backseat barbecuers.”

It wasn't as helpful as they thought," says Brett.

St Marys Medical Practice reminder

Dr Latt wished to remind the community of the following exceptions to bulk billing at the SMCHC:

Driving licence renewals	Insurance medicals
Requested medical reports	Harness medicals
	Pre-employment checks

These are NOT covered by Medicare, and may incur costs. Please discuss this with reception when booking. If you have any concerns, please contact us and we will try and address them

SMCHC Teaching Site

We are a UTAS teaching site. We regularly host students from various health faculties, who attend our site to participate in training placement. If you are attending this practice and would prefer the students do not sit in on your consultation, please inform reception prior to your appointment. These placements are very important for the students, so your cooperation is greatly appreciated.

Honest	Reliable	Professional
--------	----------	--------------

... But in 1622 Britannia did not yet rule the waves, with the Spanish, Dutch and French fleets challenging her naval supremacy. And while Great Britain is now a nation of shopkeepers, back then if Brookes wanted to buy a really good cheese, tulip, painting of a chubby nude chick with red hair or, most importantly, the latest must-have condiment, he would have had to ask the Dutch.

Europe had discovered that its traditional cuisine of turnip and lard was actually edible when heavily disguised with spices. Pepper was all the rage, the landed gentry held nutmeg parties, and gold was worth its weight in cloves. Most of these exotic treats could only be found in the East Indies (now Indonesia) and the Dutch East India Company held the keys to the spice rack.
